PREFACE

Kerala as its name denotes is known as the 'land of coconuts'. However, in recent years, Kerala has slipped from the top place in terms of coconut production and productivity. The primary reason behind this is the reluctance of the younger generation in taking up agriculture, stemming from lack of appropriate marketing avenues and the economic crisis. Our marketing strategies have to keep pace with the changing times. E-marketing has to be encouraged in a big way. E-marketing is a major platform for reaching out our commodities to the foreign markets. The GeM and e-NAM portals launched by the Government of India also targets the retail markets. The other aspect in driving our youth to agriculture, is of course, making the sector lucrative.

The Kerala Government has launched Farm Tourism to bring monetary benefits to agriculturists by linking farms with tourism. However it is yet to be implemented properly. Environment-friendly farm tourism has to be promoted and healthy market linkages created. We can expect many tourists to visit our farms. Usage of modern agricultural implements can also turn out to be a major draw. Farm tourism can help in bringing youth back to the agrarian sector.

Let me remind you all again - collaborative and consultative approach can bring efforts to fruition. It is heartening to note that our Farmer Producer Companies (FPCs) are able to extend a helping hand to those in need. The success of the FPCs also draws from the fact that they are able to effectively market our harvest, besides helping some sections of our differently abled population. Continuous efforts are being made by all of us at CISSA to strengthen our FPCs to reach greater heights.

Balaramapuram Handloom Producers Company, a historic step:

Union Minister Nirmala Sitharaman

Hon'ble Union Minister of Finance Nirmala Sitharaman inaugurating the Balaramapuram Handloom Producers Company Ltd. Hon'ble Union Minister of State V Muraleedharan also seen.

The Balaramapuram Handloom Producers Company with members of the weaving community as its shareholders is a historic step in the right direction, said Union Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman. The formation of the Company will help in reaching out benefits to each and every weaver, the Union Minister said while speaking at the formal inauguration of the Producer Company at a function held at Remya Auditorium, Pallichal, Thiruvananthapuram on 5 November 2022.

At a time when scientific research has found the presence of Micro plastic even in breast milk, handloom can be an effective substitute to mitigate the effects of environment-harming plastic. Not just saris, it should be possible to weave out all needed household items from the handloom. Such a move will not only energise the market for handlooms but also strengthen the international markets for the native yarn, the Minister said.

Our youth are distancing themselves from the handloom sector owing to lack of adequate market and the recessionary pressures. Our Hon'ble Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi has put forth 5Fs to strengthen this traditional sector. These include Farmer, Fibre, Factory, Fashion and Foreign. To implement these effectively, the handloom sector has to attain self sustainability, the Minister pointed out.

E-marketing should be promoted to market handlooms. A major potential source for exporting handlooms to the foreign markets is registering in the Union Government's e-marketing platform. The Union Minister further informed that states like Andhra Pradesh and Tamil Nadu have seen good success in marketing handlooms through the e-route.

The Union Minister also handed over the key of the new office building of Balaramapuram Handloom Producers Company Limited (BHPCL) to its Chairman S Gopakumar.

Union Minister of State V Muraleedharan, while delivering the keynote address, said it is possible to achieve the same importance to handloom tourism just as farm tourism. If Balaramapuram Handloom Tourism were to be launched, it would attract sufficient tourists who would also be interested in trying their hand at weaving! Such a move would not only enhance the market for handlooms but also help in retaining youngsters in this field. The Minister also distributed shares and share certificates to the shareholder weavers.

M Vincent, MLA presided over the event. M Shaji, NABARD Deputy Managing Director; Dr Suresh Kumar C, CISSA General Secretary; GS Sreekala, Director, BHPCL spoke. Venkataramani Reddy, Chief General Manager, SBI; NABARD and SBI officials, BHPCL and CISSA personnel participated in the event.

Union Minister Nirmala Sitharaman bowed down to a veteran weaver Shri. Subrahmanya

"I have worn handloom clothes from a young age including those from Andhra Pradesh and Tamil Nadu. But the texture of Balaramapuram handlooms is a class apart. It is as soft as butter and as light as a bird's feather. It is also equally beautiful and attractive. I thank Balaramapuram weavers who have woven such a beautiful sari."

Kerala cattle farm breeds India's indigenous cows

Cattle rearing and dairying is not new in Kerala. However, if a Kerala farm raises only indigenous cattle breeds from other states, it certainly becomes a talking point. The Kamadhenu Cattle Farm run by Nediyaamkodil Grama Vikas Samithi FIG in Parassala Panchayat of Thiruvananthapuram district is one such. The farm raises 15 India's indigenous cow breeds such as Gir, Sahiwal and Kankrej.

NS Sreekumar who is back in India after a stint abroad is the President of Grama Vikas FIG. A eight-member team including two women are actively engaged in the running of the cattle farm. The milk produced is sold in neighbouring households at a rate of Rs 60 per litre. There are many takers for good milk and it is not often possible to meet the demand, say the Samithi members.

Black gram powder, coconut cake, groundnut cake and such native feeds are fed to the cattle. Green fodder is also grown in 35 cents of land. Dried cow dung is yet another source of income for the farm. Farmers purchase cow dung at Rs 150 per sack. Plans are also on to make Gomutra Ark as postulated by Gavya Siddha method of treatment.

The Samithi is also planning to produce and distribute biogas from cow dung. The plan is to set up a biogas plant with the support of the Panchayat and distribute gas to nearby houses through piped connections. Kamadhenu Farm is also planning to procure some more cows and diversify their business to get the anticipated profits. Sreekumar is hopeful and confident of getting desired profits soon.

Information to farmers

Excerpts from Prime Minister Narendra Modi's Mann Ki Baat of 27 November

How can we forget drones when we talk about technological advances? India is advancing fast in drone technology. We recently saw how drones are used to transport apples from Kinnaur district of Himachal Pradesh. Kinnaur is a remote district of Himachal. Kinnaur experienced heavy snowfall this season so much so that it was by and large cut off from other districts of Himachal Pradesh. In such a context, transporting apples from Kinnaur was also difficult. Now with drone technology, consumers can relish the tasty apples of Kinnaur much faster. This will reduce the cost of production of farmer friends. Apples reach the market at the right time, reducing spoilage.
